

Indiana Parenting Institute, Inc.

Parenting Support in the Workplace

Working Mothers Speak

- Did you know that 96% of mothers say that they would like more parenting support or programs from their employers when it comes to combining work and motherhood?
- In addition, 9 out of 10 Working mothers believe combining career and motherhood has resulted in improved productivity, decision-making and creative problem-solving skills.
- Most importantly, however, almost 8 out of 10 Working mothers say the benefits of support in the workplace would be better work performance and increased commitment to stay with their employer.

Support in the Workplace

Supporting working parents through parenting initiatives further establishes an employers reputation as one that cares about its workforce and society in general.

Indiana Parenting Institute Inc. (IPI) deliver interactive workshops for organizations in the public, corporate, and voluntary sectors with the aim of helping working parents be effective whether at work or at home. The sessions tackle the tough practical and emotional problems that working parents face and offer tools and techniques to help them manage the complexities of parenthood and work.

Tailor Made

IPI's skill-building program can be customized to match the specific program needs of the host company.

Popular titles include:

- How to Succeed as a Working Parent
- Managing Anger and Emotions
- Parent Taming - Effective Alternatives to Shouting and Other Everyday Parent Tantrums
- 7 Steps to Creating Confident Children
- I'm a Teenager Get Me Out of My Room - Effective Strategies to Support Parents and Teenager Through GCSEs

The workshops run in length from a comprehensive all work day session to a one-hour lunchtime sessions.

All IPI courses, workshops, and seminars are lead by experienced professionals.

For information on hosting a workshop in the workplace, call 1-219-714-2772 or e-mail ipi@indianaparentinginstitute.com.